THE MAYOR REPLIES.

ANSWER TO COLONEL CUTSHAW Another Contribution to the Discussion Con cerning the Culvert Cut for the New Gas-The following is Mayor Carrington's reply to Colonel Cutshaw:

Maton's Office, ?

RICUMOND, Va., October 16, 1884.

To the Public:

To the Public:

The communication of the City Engineer to the Board of Aldermen last Monday night, and published in the Disputch of next morning, as to cutting culvert for gas-nipes, &c., demands notice at my hands.

A sense of prepriety and delicacy would have made me keep silent on a subject after it was referred to a committee for investigation under-any ordinary circumstances, but I cannot consent for the Engineer, by evasion of the real issues, misstatement of facts, and distorting what occurred, to place me in a false position.

statement of facts, and distorting what oc-curred, to place me in a false position.

I say in the start that my message to the Council was not intended as charges against the Engineer, but only as a statement of facts which I thought should be made known, and remedies provided for the con-flict of departments and to prevent dam-age to the city. As to facts stated or in-formation I received, I gave the names of my authors (Hon. W. R. Bowie and Cole-nel J. H. Knowles), who were regarded worthy of bellef, and so far as the City Engineer disputes that, the question of veracity is between them and himself. Both cannot be correct.

The Engineer refers to his visit to me three days before the culvert was cut, and my promise to prevent it, and seeks to lay blame on me, but forgets that he promised to inform me before it was cut, and that his neglect to keep that promise allowed the culvert to be cut, so that I could not prevent it. He knows that the work was done vent it. He knows that the work was done at the point I stopped it six hours before the Council met that evening, and yet is insincere enough to seek to centure me and lead the public to believe I neglected a duty by not sending a message to prevent a thing that was already done.

He states that on my own opinion, before

He states that on my own opinion, before conference with the presidents of the branches of the Council, I stopped the work, and thus would lead the public to think I did not act on the joint advice of the officers named, when he knows the facts that before and after I reached the place those gentlemen had agreed with him that the work ought not to proceed, and that I simply stopped the hands working on the pipe-joint until ee could complete the conference, and not until after the conference did I speak to the officer in charge and direct him to stor the work until I could refer the matter to the Council. He seeks to make it appear that I said in my message I did not know the work was done until "early next morning" when I had the second conference with him, whereas I sent for him the night before to meet me the next morning at 7 o'clock; when, if he had for him the night before to meet me the next morning at 7 o'clock; when, if he had been willing to quote me correctly, a notice of the reading of my message, and the punctuation used by me, would have shown that the words "early next morning" referred to the conference with him, and not to the time of my learning the work was done. He criticises my "fistening to exparte statements" of others about the corrected of his statements as to area of culrectness of his statements as to area of cul-yert and damage from cutting it.

The result proves to my satisfaction that my error was in listening to his exparte statements." I had confidence in his state-statements. I had confidence in his statements, for he was the officer who ought to have known all the facts—ought to have stated them frankly and fully, and with this feeling it was natural and proper I should receive his assurances and act upon them, without going to others.

Afterwards, I heard the other side.

Mesers, Bowie and Knowles stated to me the facts which I reported to the Council, and they and others who were reliable and ought to know assured me of the error of the City Engineer as to insufficiency of area in the culvert, and that no such damage as he stated to me would result from cutting it. My final conclusion then was reached, not from "ex parte statements," as the Engineer intimates, for I had heard both sides.

The Salmounting a handsoned product spread-eagle, with supporters representing traits—to the right Cleveland, and to the left Hendricks—in squares measuring six feet. Below this, in red, its:

ness of the Engineer's statements; that he had sought to make me violate his own agreement to be bound by the action of the joint committees; that he had concealed, or failed to state, material facts, and

This doubt was largely increased next morning at our second conference, after the pipes were laid, joined, and the trench filled with earth over the points under discussion, by the Engineer saying to me: "If I were you I would have those pipes disconnected and taken up, and the dirt taken out just as when you ordered the work to stop, to show them my authority should be regarded "—or words to that effect.

I replied that such action might gratify temper, but could not be justified by judg-ment, and that I would do no such thing.

ment, and that I would do no steet thing-even if I could.

Here, then, was a city officer (the En-gineer) who seemed to me not only to have lacked frankness and accuracy, but willing to undo the work of another department, damage property, and put the city to cost, all to gratify temper or vanity and enforce his authority.

Captain A. M. Tomlinson and Dr. R. G.

Captain A. M. Tomilinson and Dr. R. G. Cabel! were present at this occurrence and heard what I state.

As the City Engineer has asked why I did not approach him again before concluding he was in error, &c. I give my reason in the above facts, and leave it to any reasonable man whether he would have approached the City Engineer further in this matter. The Engineer may sneer at matters of this sort as "ridienlous in its notoriety," as "a supreme farce," and that "publicity was given to the affair as an advertisement," and as "sadding mistakes on him"; but it seems to me only a man who regards himself infailable, and who thinks regards himself infallible, and who thinks uo one should dare dispute his authority, could so regard it. I do not belong to that class, and do not regard the matter as so

In conclusion, I say I feel that I have In conclusion, I say I feel that I have done my duty promptly and with decision; that I have been guilty of no delay or any resulting damage, but have acted only as I feit I should act, and shall be satisfied for the committee to decide where any fault existed and recommend remedies to prevent such conflicts in future.

I would turther say that I have no feeling against the Engineer or any one in this matter, and that in my intercourse with the Engineer's department I have found himself and assistants prompt, ditigent, and courteous.

Courteous.

I deeply regret that self-defence from the seeming attack of the Engineer on me constrains me to reply to his communication.

Respectfully.

W. C. CARRINGTON, Mayor.

Republican Mass-Heeting.

Last night, according to previous notice, a Republican mass-meeting was held on the old City-Hall lot, in front of Ford's Hotel. General Green B. Raum was the speaker of the evening, and was introduced by Mr. R. T. Hubard, the Republican nomines for Congress from this district.

General Mahone was expected to be present, but was not on hand. General Raum spoke for two hours to a good-sized crowd, composed mostly of colored beopic; but the force of what he said was very much marred by reason of the General's boarseness. His voice was so badly cracked that it sounded at times most ludicrous. The crowd remained until he closed, and afterwards listened to a brief talk from Mr. Hubard.

The meeting was very orderly and quies, and void of anything that indicated spirit and hope of success in the pending con-

It is stated that while they were absorbed in the practice of this beautiful trio a soble Republican voter was attracted by the "concord of sweet sound" to venture within the hall of the private residence wherein this trio was assembled. Tiring with the length of the niece, it is supposed that the thief, wishing to make a needs for the loss of valuable time, made a clean sweep of the hat-rack. It was a costly rehearsal, and one not soon to be forgotten by the musicians.

The orchestra played their three selections with line effect, and altogether the musicale was a very enjoyable one. of the Second Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Dr. Moses D. Hoge reached this city night before last from Europe, where he went for the double purpose of attending the Evangelical Alliance at Copenhagen (to which he was a delegate) and to spend with his son Moses (a student at the Berlin University) his vacation in travel in Great Britain. In the Doctor's absence Rev. Mr. Kerr, of the First Presbyterian church, filled his pulpit, and the two congregations worshipped together in the Second church; an arrangement made particularly practicable, inasmuch as the house of worship of the First church has been torn down to make room for the new City Hall and is being rebuilt on west Grace street. The ladies of the two churches some time ago resolved to on west Grace street. The ladies of the two churches some time ago resolved to give Dr. Hoge a welcome home, and they formed a plan which included Mr. Kerr as well as Dr. Hoge in the honors of the occasion; but unfortunately Mr. Kerr has been confined at home for several weeks by sickness and could not be a participant.

The "welcome home" was given last night in the lecture-room of the Second church, which was decorated for the occasion with flowers and evergreens. On the

The desk was concealed in a bank of flowers, and on the other side of the room was a large stand filled with the best obtainable specimens of Virginia orchards and earders. orchards and gardens.

The attendance at the reception was very large. Mr. William Wirt Henry was the spokesman of the two congregations, and made an address to Dr. Hoge, expressing in felicitous terms the pleasure of the people in receiving him back. He spoke of Dr. Hoge as the Spurgeon of Richmond; aliuded happily to the temporary union of the two churches, and congratulated the First church upon the possession of one aliaded happity to the temporary union of the two churches, and congratulated the First church upon the possession of one who is so well suited to his work as Mr. Kerr is; said that there is searcely a church anywhere so much indebted to one man as the Second is to Dr. Hoge, and truly and eloquently expressed the delight of the Richmond people at the honors showered upon the Doctor in Europe.

Dr. Hoge, replying, said that he found a great deal of comfort and help in Mr. Henry's warm words. He believed it to be the opinion of all professional men that the life of a minister is peculiarly trying, demanging, as it does, so much labor of the brain and body, and such calls upon the emotions; but there is nothing so cheering as words of kinoness when they are stucere and come from the heart, as he felt sure they did in this instance. Referring to what Mr. Henry had said of the indebtedness of the church to him, he made a modest disclaimer and answered that rarely has a church had such material to work upon as he had here. such material to work upon as he had here, and "if our church has prospered praise be to God, for never has a pastor been better

Dr. Hoge would not let Mr. Henry's comparison of him with Spurgeon stand, and after saying how unworthy he was to be likened to Spurgeon spoke in hearty praise of that great preacher, who had said that his (Spurgeon's) success was "not due to the attraction of magnetic power of the man on the platform, but was because his people loved him and worked with him."

Of the agreeable reception he had met in Europe, he declared that not one tithe of it was due to him personally. But he thanked God that he was enabled to represent this people, the Church of which he is a member, and the land of which he is a citizen; and he knew of no luxury greater citizen; and he knew of no invary greater than that of carrying with him the confidence of those whom he tried to represent.

Dr. Hege said that he went away on this voyage with the first feeling of satisfaction he had ever had in crossing the ocean, and that it was because he had left his church in the care of so good a minister as Mr. Kerr. Of this centleman's niety and ability he sooke geona a minister as Ar. Kerr. Of this gentleman's piety and ability he spoke very warmly and regretted Mr. Kerr's sickness. Since his return here he had had time to pay but one visit, and that was to Mr. Kerr. Dr. Hoge, as he looked upon the splendid display of fruits and flowers, said, "I am reminded that the blue heavens denot hend over a fairer load than the." said, "I am reminded that the blue heavens do not bend over a fairer land than this,"
and that our institutions may be preserved
he earnestly prayed, but that could be done not by dependence upon soldier or statesmen, but by dependence upon God, and it will be found that the "truest patriot is the most cernest Christian."

Then he spoke of "the happy churches of this town," and the harmony existing among them, and concluded with a declara-tion that, refreshed by his rest, he was ready and glad to return to his labors, and he asked the blessing of God upon his work and his people.

The choir of the First church then sang "Home, Sweet Home"; after that handshakings with Dr. Hoge; then music and

There were several ministers present at the reception, and Dr. Hoge, in his remarks, specially referred to them, and in grateful terms.

Death of T. A. Pollard.

Mr. Thomas A. Pollard, principal of Springfield and East-End public schools, died yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, in the forty-seventh year of his age. Mr. Polisid has been sick since last Sunday week; and though his case was severe it was and though his case was severe it was hoped, until within a day of his death, that he would recover. As a man he was amiable, modest, and true; as a Christian, earnest, conscientious, and deeply pious; as a school officer, faithful, popular, and effi-

He was greatly endeared to those who were brought into intimate contact with him, whether socially or officially. Mr.
Pellard was the youngest son of the late John Camm Pollard, of Kirg William

The Hozart Last Night.

There was quite a large audience present at last night's Mozart musicale. Miss Ragland was the sole vocal attraction. This young lady, who comes from Kentucky, is now living in Richmond, and has once before appeared before the Association. Her efforts of last evening met with much favor, and upon her rendition of each of her two solos was the recipient of fattering encores. She has a rich and sweet mezzo-soprano, which she gives in all its purity without resorting to the vocal trickery which is so often resorted to nowadays. Her selections were all quiet and romantic in character, though very effective and pleasing withal. She sings with much taste, and is a valuable addition to the vocal talent of Richmond.

Mr. Equi gave another evidence of his skill and proficiency as a finished trombone-player in the "Tema Con Variagione," by Klotz. His tone was beautiful, while his rapid and accurate execution was simply wonderful.

The management of the Virginia Base-Ball Club have reserved the following players for the next season: Messrs. Glenn. Nash, Powell, Johnston, Larkin, Meegan, Hanna, Quinton, and Dugan. Schenck is not reserved.

Mr. Mansell was not retained, not for the reason that he was not wanted, but because when he signed with the Club he did so with the understanding that the reserve rule would be barred. Mr. Manselt created a favorable impression with base-ball paa favorable impression with base-ball patrons here during his connection with the Virginias by his conscientious work and gentlemanly conduct, and it is hoped t at he may yet be induced to remain with the Club.

Scharf, the favorite short stop of the Virginias during the season of 1883, is still held by the Club under the reserve rule. He has not played with any professional club since he left here, nor can he do so without a release. If he does not report for duty at the beginning of the next season he will be blacklisted.

"Terry" Larkin makes his acknowledgements of kind treatment received in a note to this paper, in which be says:

I return my sincere thanks to the people of Richmond and also the press for their kindness towards me while in this city, and I can safely say that in my ten years' experience on the diamond field I have never played before more gentlemanly and appreciative audiences than those of Richmond. payed before more gentlemany and applied clative audiences than those of Richmond. I hope they will continue to patronize the game as usual next season. Wishing the Club and management the best of success in the future, and again thanking all, I remain, very respectfully.

HENRICO HUNTERS.

Just a Little Tee Early for Partridges. Yesterday an irate sportsman came into the city to look up Judge E. C. Minor in order to report the fact that certain parties had been shooting partridges in Henrico county, and had quoted the Judge as au-thority for being within the bounds of the law in so doing. The Judge was found, and in answer to questions, answered like law in so doing. The Judge was found, and in answer to questions, answered like a man as follows:

"I ask for space in your paper to make a statement in reference to the 'game law' in Henrico county, and to correct an erroneous extra-judicial opinion I have expressed in regard to it. Within the last ten days I have been applied to for information as to when the season for shooting partridges commenced in the county of Henrico. I supposed, and informed those who applied, that the general act on the subject of game passed by the General Assembly at its last session permitted the killing of partridges in all counties east of the Bine Ridge between the 15th of October and the 15th of January. Subsequent investigation has convinced me that I was mistaken in the belief that this general law applied to Henrico. This act contains a provision that it shall not apply to 'any county having a special game law, unless by consent of the Board of Supervisors of such county. There was an act of the General Assembly (which I had overlooked), passed March 9, 1880, making it unlawful to kill partridges in the counties named in the act, one of which was Henrico, before the 1st of November. Henrico thus having a special game law, and the Board of Supervisors not having given their consent that the general law should apply to the county, it follows that the special act must govern in Henrico, and that partridges cannot be shot there before the 1st of November, or after the 1st of January."

The whiskey sold by us is manufactured by a process of distillation known only to ourselves, and when distilled is entirely free from fusel oil (the poisonous quality of most all whiskeys), and is therefore absolutely pure, no coloring matter or other deleterious matter being in it. Its general use by the medical profession of the Southiss ale being pushed by 247 mercantile houses in the State of Maryland, our home—is the best proof of its merit. The Whiskey will absolutely cure Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It is an indispensable tonic for tired and nursing mothers, and the best known remedy for those afflicted with hemorrhages, pulmonary complaints, or other symptoms of Consumption. The following testimental is from Mr.

Mr. Weil's case was considered hopeless from the start, his friends actually having arranged for his funeral. They hearing of the curative qualities of Duffy's Barley Matt Whiskey suggested a trial. The suggestion was acted on with great success, for in a short time he was entirely cured, and by the use of this whiskey alone. Mr. Weil is to-day attending to his business as usual. On the 30th of December I was removed to the Hebrew Hospital, and was there ordered by my physician to use Cod-Liver Oil and Whiskey. On advice, the whiskey I used was your famous Barley Malt. In a short time I discarded the oil, using only your
